

Appendix 105 to
THE HISTORY OF CHEHAW COUNCIL

*Red and White
City Strips from Towns
in the Original Aumuckalee and Notchaway Council Territories*

Prior to 1973 Scouts wore strips, usually red and white, on their left shoulder, denoting the city and state of their troop. Under the city strip was a shorter state strip. Colors varied depending on your shirt.

Professional Scouts wore a strip with the Council name on it. For Chehaw Council, only a red and white version is known to exist.

(From the collection of J. Michael Greene.)

